McKnight Crossings Church

RE: Senior Minister Position

Dear McKnight Crossings Church,

I was excited to see your post seeking a senior minister because it seems to be exactly the ministry position I am looking for: a full-time opportunity to disciple for the Lord and grow a service-driven community.

Current and former employers have described me as relational, a great communicator, a galvanizer, and a team player.

Throughout my career, I have worked with every demographic from students to corporate executives. This has given me a variety of skills to build rapport and connection. It is my desire to not only meet people, but to genuinely know them as the person God has created them to be.

I have been blessed with the ability to speak well among small and large groups. As a youth minister at River City Church, I used this skill to create and deliver sermons on a bi-weekly basis to 80+ youth members. Currently in my apprenticeship role at Sycamore View Church of Christ, I have had the opportunity to share Sunday morning sermons with the congregation multiple times. Before answering a professional call to ministry, I offered corporate speaking and team building.

As someone who is relational, I enjoy bringing others together to work toward a common goal while making the process productive and fulfilling. Currently, I am responsible for creating a small group environment for new and seeking members. As each "incubator" group is created, I lead them for eight weeks and then counsel them for success as independent groups.

Your church, McKnight Crossings, presents itself as a closeknit family, serving the community as the hands and feet of Jesus. I'd love to come in and speak with you more about becoming the lead minister of your selfless congregation.

Thank you for your consideration.

Warmly,

Josh Nix
